

HEALTHWAREX PROPRIETARY LIMITED

THE PROMOTION OF ACCESS TO INFORMATION MANUAL ("Manual")

1. GENERAL NOTE

- 1.1. The Promotion of Access to Information Act, 2000 ("PAIA"), effective from 9 March 2001, aims to uphold the Constitutional right of access to information held by the State or any other person. It allows individuals and organisations to access records from both public and private bodies if the information is necessary to exercise or protect their rights. PAIA requires private bodies to disclose information if a requester demonstrates the need for it and no grounds for refusal apply. It also outlines the procedures for making such requests.
- 1.2. Section 51 of PAIA requires private bodies to create a manual to facilitate access to information held by them, detailing the minimum requirements for this manual.
- 1.3. This Manual serves as HealthWareX's compliance document ("Manual") under section 51 of PAIA, as amended by the Protection of Personal Information Act, 2013 ("POPIA"). POPIA enforces the Constitutional right to privacy and establishes standards for the protection of personal information processed by both public and private entities. It modifies certain provisions of PAIA to balance the right to information with the need to protect personal data. This includes creating an Information Regulator, issuing codes of conduct, and addressing rights related to unsolicited electronic communications and automated decision-making.
- 1.4. The Manual also covers procedures for submitting objections to the processing of personal information and requests to delete or destroy personal information or records in accordance with POPIA.
